

Dear Manolis,

Do you remember when I told you that I really wanted to go to Washington? Well, guess what; I'm finally travelling there! Boy, am I happy! I'm sure I'm going to have loads of fun! Also, I've already made a holiday plan. Let me tell you what I've planned in a nutshell.

So, first of all, when I arrive there with my family, we'll go to the hotel we've booked. Afterwards, we're visiting the National Mall. It's an open-area national park in the city centre. One thing I can say for sure, is that it certainly isn't your everyday park; it's huge, full of green, and it's also located next to the United States Capitol and the Lincoln Memorial. Of course, we'll be visiting them all, too.

The next day, we are going to visit the International Spy Museum. It is quite an extraordinary museum, which, as the title implies, only has exhibits about spies; from camera-glasses to seemingly harmful items which, when needed, can turn into destructive weapons. Next up is the National Air and Space Museum; a museum holding the largest collection of historic aircrafts and spacecrafts in the world.

During our third day there, we'll be visiting the National Museum of Natural History. This museum's collections contain over 126 million specimens of plants, animals, fossils, minerals, rocks, meteorites, and human cultural artifacts. And, finally, we are going to visit the National Zoo. It must be the most amazing zoo ever; it consists of over 2,000 animals of 400 different species.

I'm absolutely certain that we're going to have a lot of fun abroad! I really look forward to us travelling there!

How about you? How is everyone doing? Are you having fun? I'm looking forward to your reply.

Write back soon,

Alexandros Kouridakis
